the 1990s, the industry has been hit hard by a combination of factors, including a decline in demand for its products, a shift in consumer preferences, and a lack of innovation. The industry has been struggling to adapt to these changes, and many companies have been forced to close their doors or restructure. The industry's decline has been particularly acute in the United States, where it has lost a significant portion of its market share to foreign competitors. The industry's future is uncertain, and it will likely continue to face challenges in the years ahead.

the 1990s, the industry has been hit hard by a combination of factors. The most significant of these is the decline in the number of people working in the industry. This has been caused by a number of factors, including the fact that many people have left the industry to pursue other careers, and the fact that the industry has not been able to attract new talent. This has led to a shortage of skilled workers, which has in turn led to a decline in the quality of the work produced.
