James Cameron returns to space television with Avatar, a sci-fi epic that will take audiences to Pandora, a lush, alien world. The film, which is set to be released in 2009, is a collaboration between Cameron and his production company, Lightstorm Entertainment. The story follows a marine who is sent to Pandora to help the native Na'vi people fight against a greedy corporation that wants to exploit the planet's resources. The film is a visual masterpiece, with stunning special effects and a powerful message about environmentalism and the importance of nature.
